Declaration of Apostasy

Author: Kamil Rafikov
Email: mailbox@kamil-rafik.com
Updated at November 15th, 2026.
Edition: 1.

Considering that my adoption of Sahajdhari Sikhism in 2023−2024 was not (and could not be, by its nature) an official action, I came to the conclusion that within current global social and technological changes I must strictly apostatize from and renounce all previous philosophical and cultural affiliations. This is just to avoid being accused again of attempting to use some ethnocultural financial and material resources for free, and to clean up the previous periods of my life.

On the current date, November 15th, 2026, I, Kamil Rafikov, being of sound mind and memory, formally apostatize from and renounce my affiliation with Jewry, the ethnocultural groups of Tatarstan, and the historical and modern cultural trends of Western civilization.

Obviously, this action does not affect any business, citizenship, or legal obligations, nor personal human-to-human relationships. It is just a declaration of cultural, philosophical, and ethnic apostasy.

By the way, Starship was able to perform a landing yesterday, which could eventually drive spaceflight costs down to a minimum. Possibly, a new era in the development of humanity has just begun.